"Teaching to the test" doesn't mean teachers give students the answers. It simply means teachers focus on what the test will have on it rather than focusing on what they know students should learn in general. As a third grade teacher who must administer the test to students for their first time, I DO teach them "how" to take the test.

My daughter is in 4th grade. She has 3 different teachers. One teacher is her Reading, English and Spelling teacher. For close to half of this school year, my daughter would bring home spelling work sheets that she would have to work on throughout the week and every Friday they would have a spelling test on those words. My daughter is an excellent speller so her grade was always 100.
